

Are You Mission Minded?

By Kimberly Sowell

You might be mission-minded if:

1. You eat soup on the 4th of July, just for the soup labels.
2. You never have silver for vending machines because all of your change goes into your mission's piggybank.
3. Your idea of summer water activities is serving ice water at a backyard Bible club.
4. You order kids meals just for the toy, so you can place it in a shoebox destined for South Africa!
5. You asked for malaria pills and children's craft supplies for your birthday.

Or if...

1. You read your hometown newspaper as a prayer guide.
2. You consider long lines to be God's way of blessing you with an opportunity to minister to the people who wait alongside of you.
3. When people encourage your child to be a doctor, or a lawyer, or a teacher, or a singer, you chime in, "or a missionary!"
4. You esteem earthly possessions and positions lightly, always living with a hopeful expectation that God may one day call you on the vocational mission field.
5. You esteem earthly possessions and positions lightly, always living with a grateful realization that God has called you to the local mission field.
